Users can create a new account by inputting into the required fields (marked*) and submit to the system. Upon account creation, the user will either be logged in automatically or be redirected to the sign-in screen

Searching

Users can search for game genres or specific game groups by title using the search bar. In the example, the game title is shown in the search bar and groups that match the game will appear in the search results. A preview of the group description is shown and the user can choose to send a request to join the group. When the user clicks to request, the button will change form to indicate that a request has been sent.

Match Suggestions

Users who have chosen "Looking for the one" through the homepage and are signed in will land on this page. They will be suggested people who match their preferences, game-interests, etc.

Match suggestions Hover

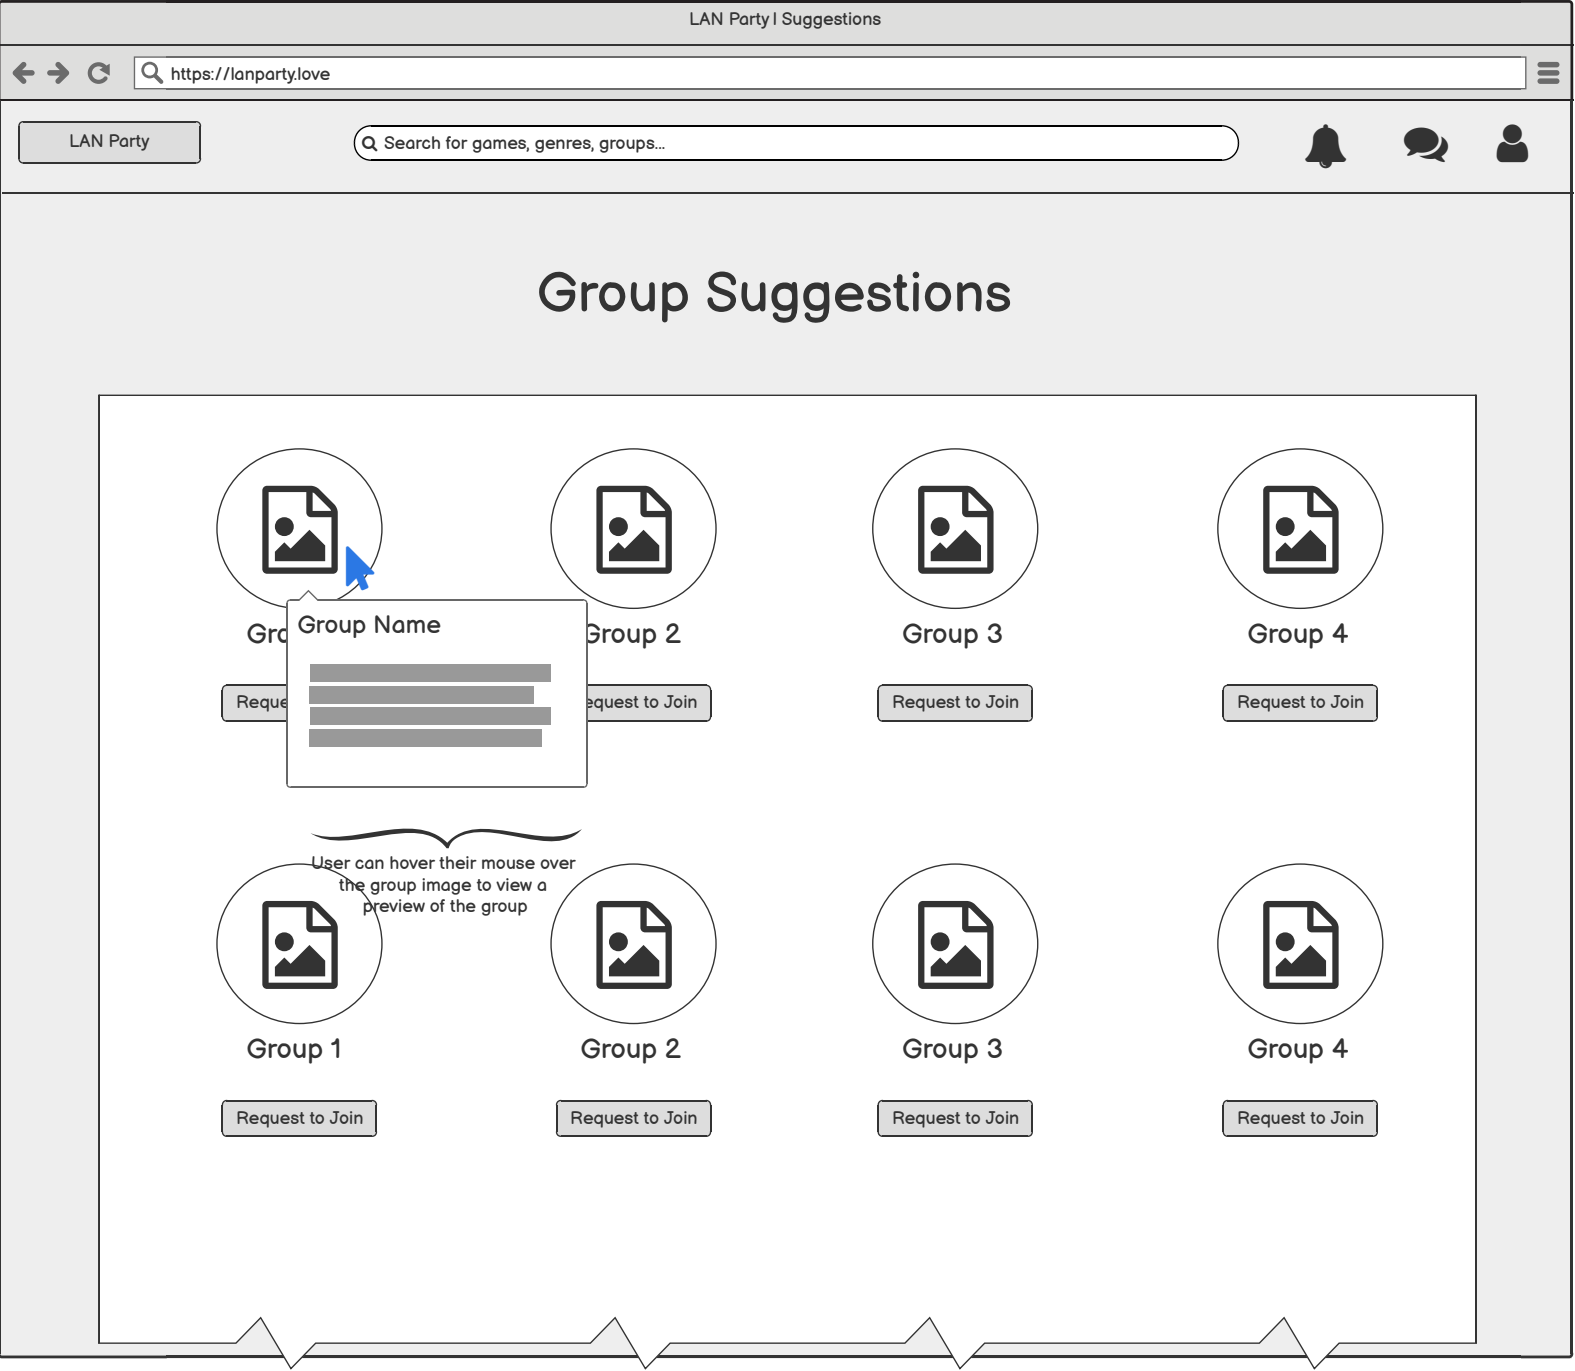

If a user is interested in learning more about a certain user, they can see a preview of that user's profile by hovering over the card. The preview will give some brief information about the person, including the user's profile picture.

Group Description

Users who have chosen "Looking for a group" through the homepage and are signed in will land on this page. They will be suggested groups who match their preferences, game-interests, etc.

Group Description Preview

If a user is interested in learning more about a certain group, they can see a preview of that group's information by hovering over the card. The preview will give some brief information about the group, including the group's description.

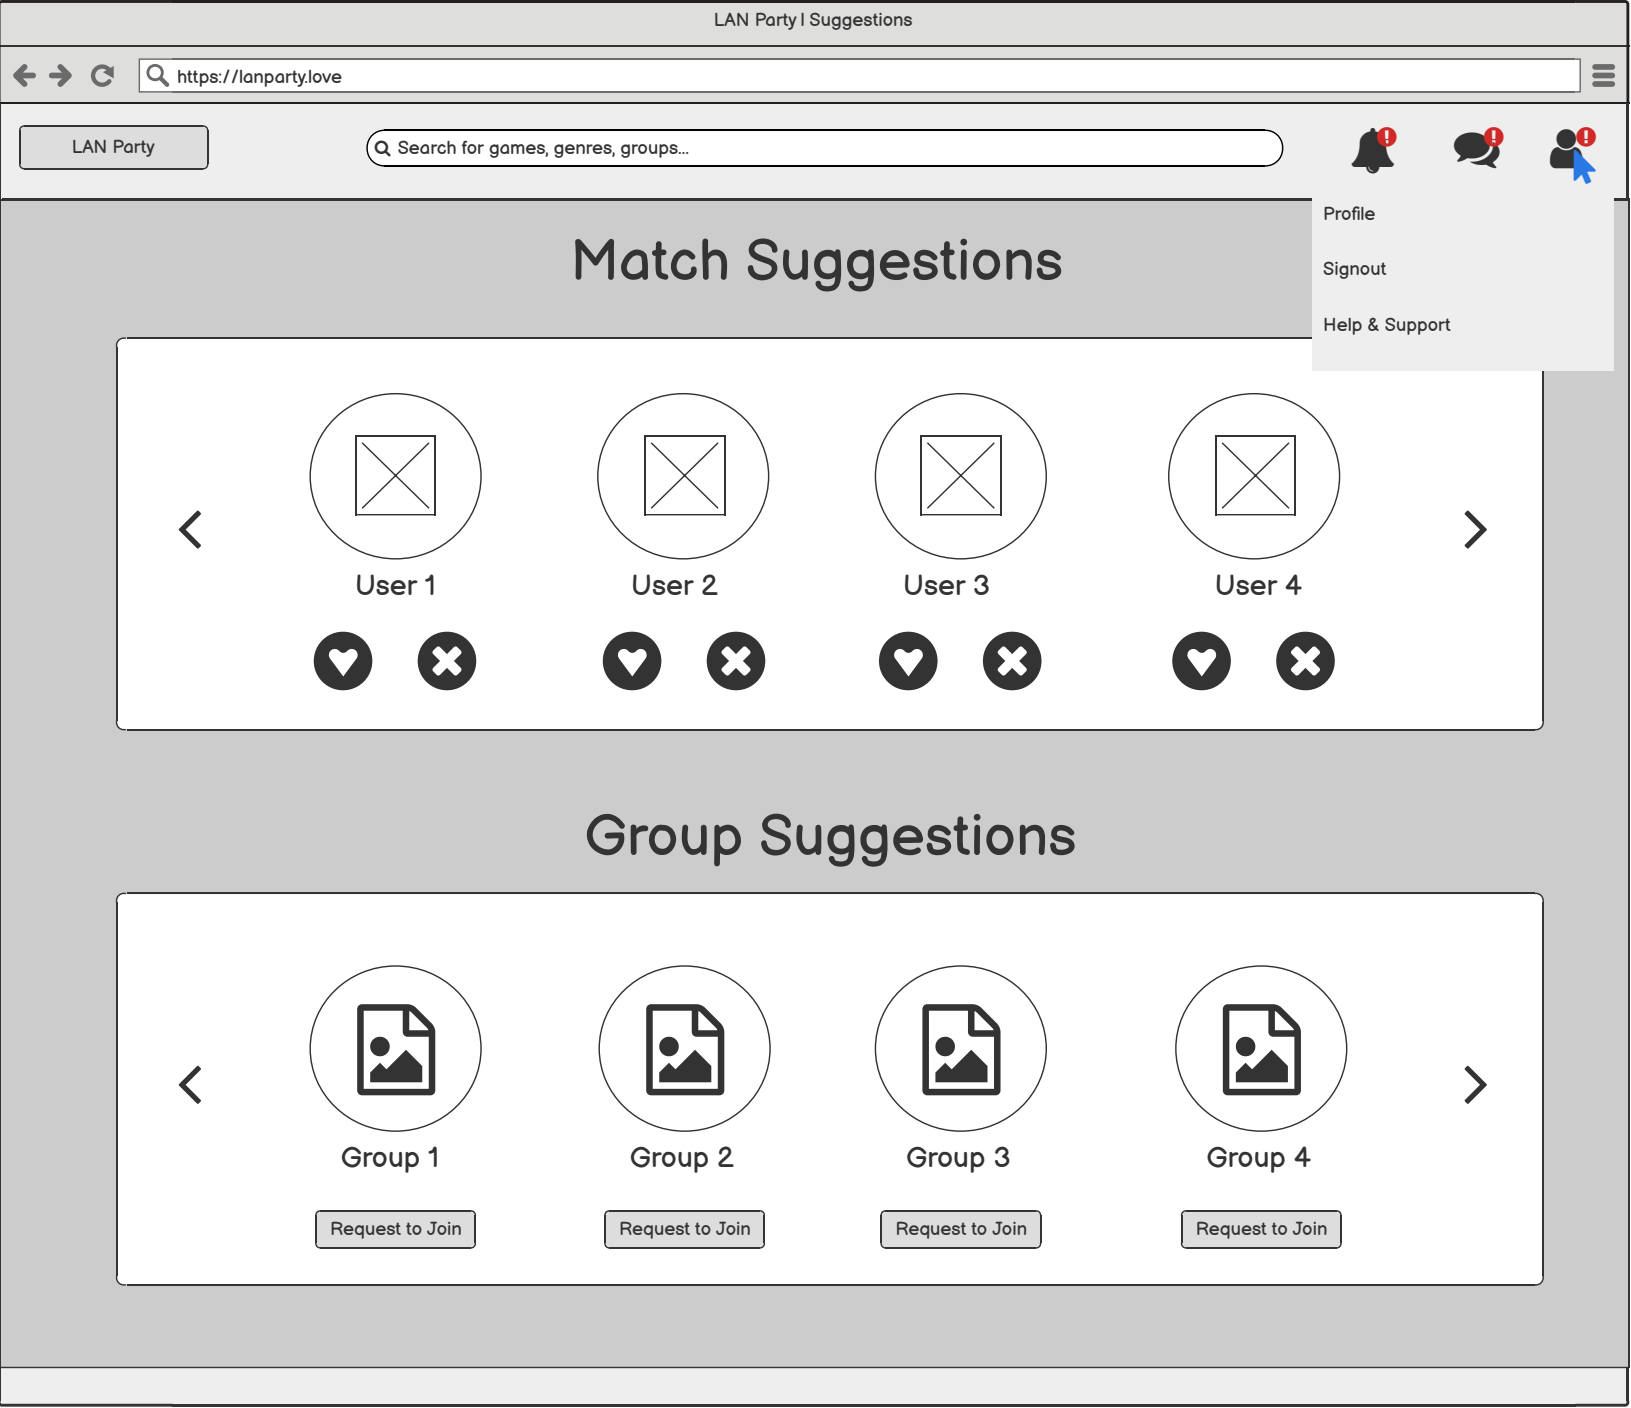

Showing notifications Suggestions Page

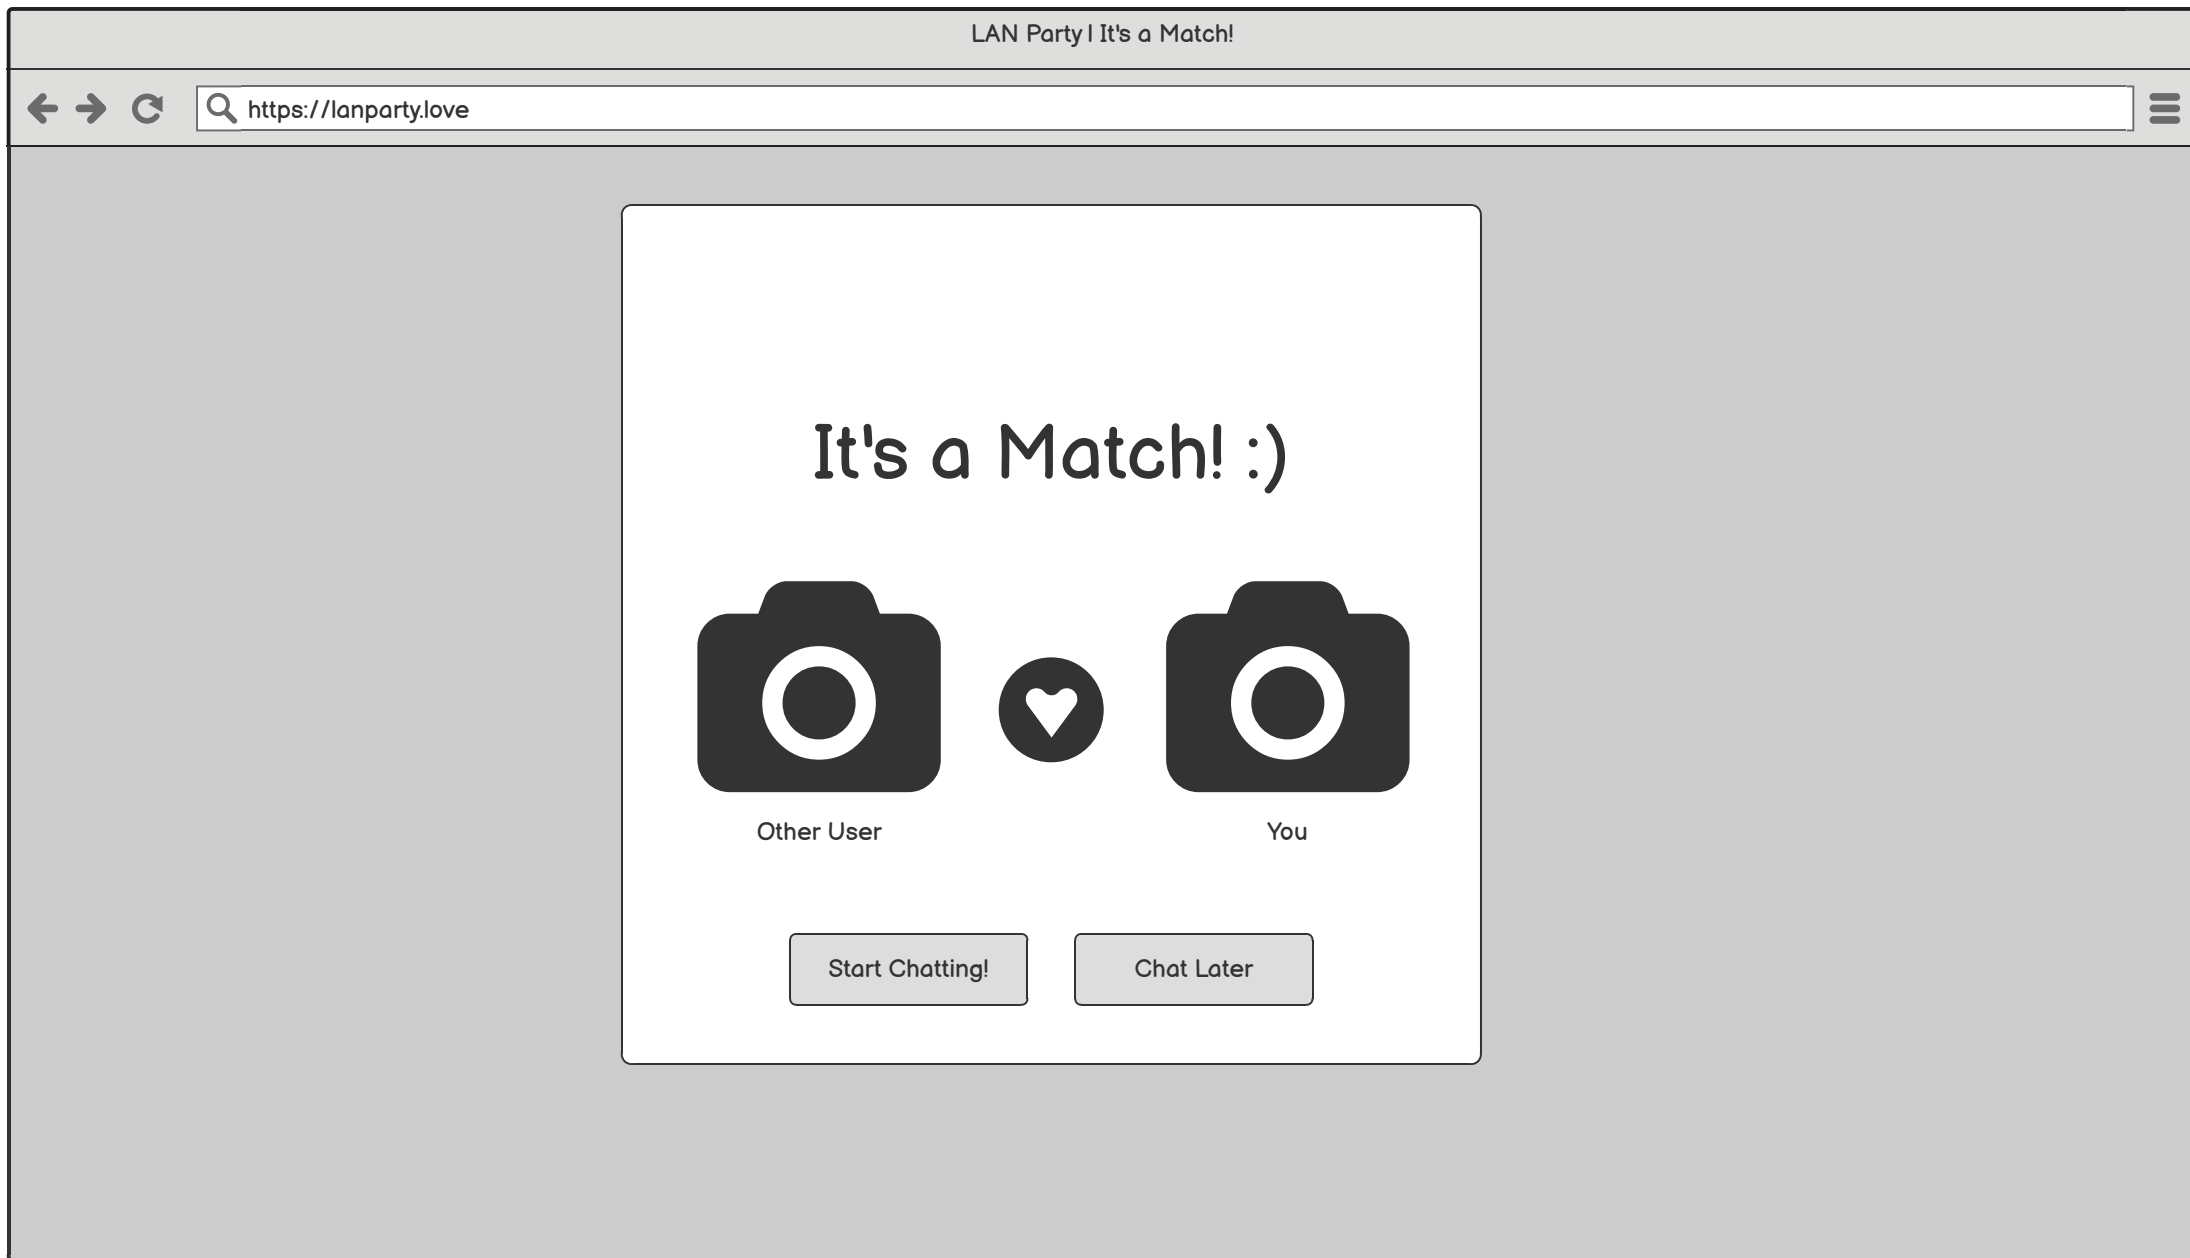

If the user is both interested in looking for a partner and groups, they can be shown suggestions for matches and groups. The User will also be notified for activity such as matching with someone or granting access to a group.

User will also be notified for chat activity, where the latest message will be previews through the list.

Profile settings, logout functionality and help will be housed through the dropdown menu in the navigation bar

When the user matches with someone through notifications, they will be redirected to this .
Start Chatting button redirects to the chatroom where chat later redirects back to the last page user was at.

Chatroom

Users can chat with their matches through the chat room where text messages can be exchanged. The nav bar will have functionality as previously explained. The additional arrow icon will allow user to exit out of the chatroom and return to the previous page.
